

Mum's the word

CHOCOLATE king Simon Haigh is her hubby, but Leigh McClusky's children will most certainly not be presenting her with chocolates on Sunday.

Instead, all Leigh wants is Simon, who has been overseas on business, back in her arms.

"I miss my husband, I really like his company," she tells Confidential, adding he'll be home on Saturday.

And considering it will be Leigh's first Mother's Day with four children under six – Murdoch, 5, Sigourney, 2, and four-month old twins Jock and Tansy – she would also like a little me time.

"I don't know and don't care what present I get," she says.

"If you could package eight hours' sleep that would be divine."

Although if the young family is planning a gift, Leigh would love it to be a contribution to the Women's and Children's Hospital Foundation.

And as a special bonus, every donor to the Mother's Day Appeal, which is raising funds for vital equipment, receives a Mother's Day card. A WCHF donation "is so much more rewarding" than a present just for the sake of a present, Leigh says.

And speaking of rewarding, the former Today Tonight presenter is looking forward to resuming her career. There are plans to start up her own consultancy business covering public relations, media management and training, and events by June 30.

And there's also work lined up with Channel 7's Discover later in the year.

"I'm not going to sit around twiddling my thumbs," Leigh says.
